

Creating world class quality standards

Conclusion

Today we live in a complex global economy. Relationships are frequently built on reputations for supplying quality products, services and processes. BSI plays a key role in creating the standards and in testing.

As international trade, travel and communications increase, international standards are used to enable products to be traded across Europe and worldwide. BSI is actively involved in helping UK and other international businesses to build their own reputations for quality through standards.